SOLUTION OF "JAP" QUESTION ON WAY

Ambassadors In Agreement Plan To Be Submitted For O. K.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Negotiations between Ambassadors Morris and Shidehara for the settlement of the California question and the definition of the rights of Japanese in the United States have been successfully concluded.

Approval of the conclusions of the two Ambassadors must be given by their Governments before any further action looking into a settlement of the controversy that has arisen over the California anti-alien law can be had. Byron Shidehara has submitted his report to the Foreign Office at Tokio and Mr. Morris has his report ready for consideration by Secretary Colby, who is expected to return to Washington Thursday from South America.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been kept advised by Mr. Morris of the various phases of the negotiations so that if the committee desired to consider in the remaining days of the present session any draft treaty which Wilson might submit, the way would be cleared for prompt action.

Administration officials have had no assurance that it is the purpose of the Republican leaders to endeavor to dispose of any American-Japanese treaty at present, but it is understood that some representations have been made from Republican sources that it might relieve the Harding Administration of a considerable burden if such a treaty could be concluded during the present session.

These representations are said to have been based upon the theory that the so-called California question can be considered by the Senate, and by the House as well, as a purely non-partisan question.

TO THE VOTERS OF OHIO COUNTY

Ladies and Gentlemen:—Having decided to make the race for the Republican nomination for Clerk of Ohio County Court, I take this method of announcing my candidacy to you, I am personally acquainted with many of you while a great number of you I have not had the pleasure of meeting. I shall attempt to give you a brief biography of myself and my life in order that you may know more about me and have my case before you for your consideration until I can have an opportunity to call on you personally.

I was born in Arnold Precinct, this County, in the year 1897, my parents being Ellis and Susan Tate, who were in common circumstances financially. I was as unfortunate as to lose my mother at the early age of 4; my father at the age of 5; consequently, I being the smallest of five children, was left without a home, when an uncle, L. B. Tate, took me into his home to care for me; there I had nothing more or less than a struggle for support and my education; my uncle being in only reasonable circumstances, old and frail. My preliminary education was obtained by the humble fireside, by the glow of the fire light, of nights after the chores were finished.

In the year 1916 at the age of 19, I entered a normal session of school, contemplating teaching in the rural schools later. When the conflict with Germany arose and the call for volunteers came I heeded the call and enlisted in the U. S. Army and from beginning to end I served in the United States, France, Belgium and Germany for a period of two years after which I returned to the States and to Ohio County and took up the position of Deputy County Court Clerk, under Mr. Blankenship, which position I now hold.

I place myself before you feeling that I am fully capable of performing the duties of County Clerk, having had eighteen months experience in the office, and I feel that I merit the support of the people. I respectfully submit my case for your consideration and assuring you that any help you may give me will be fully appreciated, I beg to remain

Very respectfully yours,
JAS. A. TATE.

Hartford, Ky., Jan. 25, 1921.

BEADS ODDLY STRUNG

(By I. D. Claiborne.)

It isn't fair to require that a man surrender all or any of his ancient and honorable privileges just because he gets married. But such is the punishment Fluke undertakes to meet out to my dear friend, Battle Nall. In my puny and feeble way I helped make Bat famous. I wrote him up and wrote him down until his name was a household, aye, a byword, in the home of every family that reads the Republican. Finally I went away, as all of us must sometime go away from everywhere, and left Bat's fame in the hands of Fluke. For a time Fluke performed his duty with faultless diligence, until Battle deciding, like another Adam, that it was not good for man to live alone, went joyfully, hopefully, gladly to the hymenal altar, and then Fluke flunked. But here is to the resurrection of Battle's fame. May it never grow less.

I am just now wondering what irreparable injury Claude Smith thinks I have done him, that he indulges in such stinging retaliation. For a quarter of a century, if I may say it without exposing Claude's age, I don't care to expose mine—Claude and I have maintained the most congenial relations, and time had seemed to cement our mutual goodwill. Never until Monday did it dawn upon me that so fixed a friendship would be broken except by a stroke of lightning, the wreck of an aeroplane or some similar catastrophe. But Monday—I shall always remember it as a fatal day—Claude gave the boy at my boarding house a dog. Now he knew, or could have on reflection recalled, that I have an instinctive horror of dogs. There are a few folks, chiefly women, who will go into convulsion fits at the sight of a cat. Other folks can not bear the sight of certain cloths, as linen or silks—natural antagonisms, little understood but none the less real. Now that is my experience with dogs. I can account for it only upon the theory that in some previous existence I was a cat and happened to live with a family that kept a dog, or perhaps a whole kennel of dogs. Anyway, the sight of a dog, especially about the house, instinctively impels me to do something awful. In the old days at the sight of a dog about the house I would kick and scream or perhaps take a drink, but times have changed and I can only kick. I would escape by changing my boarding house, but boarding houses are so darned hard to get in Central City that nothing short of a kick by the landlady will dislodge a boarder. I thought I would solve the problem by buying the dog and shooting it, and offered the boy ten dollars for it, but he demanded a cool million. I'd poison the damned dog, but that would mean sleeping with nothing but a water sky for a covering. Driven to desperation, I am seriously thinking of committing suicide just to get out of my misery and touch Claude's sense of remorse. And then I think maybe that is just what he intended, and I'll live thru it to spite him.

I was over in Ohio county Sunday, and my heart was moved to pity by discovery of the number of my friends who are going to run for office. There is to me something pathetic in the spectacle of a friend of mine becoming a candidate. I'd much rather see him, if he must take a chance, get into a crap game. His losses would be smaller and sooner over with. Running for office takes all the milk of kindness out of the human breast. The defeated candidate can never suppress his sorrow for the people for the good service they miss by not electing him. He never afterward believes the people are capable of self-government, and this discovery of their stupidity hurts him, hurts clear down to the marrow in his bones. Occasionally he forgoes judgment and is willing to give them another chance, but a second defeat unfixes his faith in the good sense of mankind. But the fellow who wins elicits my sincerest sympathy. He but prolongs his slavery. For four years he must play the hypocrite by day and ease and grift his teeth by night. It is not natural for a man to love everybody, and only saints and candidates try to. Chains, shackles, hang like leaden weights about the candidate for office. He is no longer his own master, but every man's man; everybody's friend, at least until the polls close. The defeated fellows I can dismiss with a smile and the reflection that whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, but those elected are on the road to somewhere, and you can never tell where. One in a hundred, like the holders of tickets in a lottery, win a small prize but the other ninety and nine lie awake o' nights as the end of their term approaches, and wonder whence they can turn to keep the wolf from the door. "Old Sunset" Cox said many years ago that no man should be allowed to hold office until he had thoroughly demonstrated that he was not fit for anything else. And now, after years of close range observation of the ingratitude and disappointments of officeholding, I am clearly convinced "Old Sunset" was right.

$500 FOR ARREST OF NIGHT RIDERS

Frankfort, Ky. Jan. 25.—Governor Morrow has indicated that if requested by the Fleming County authorities which he expects, he will offer a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of any one of a dozen men who called at the home of a truck driver named Tomlin, near Sherburne, Saturday night and warned him not to haul any more tobacco to market.

The circumstance was officially reported to the Governor by Fleming County authorities. The Governor already has requested Circuit Judge Henry Prewitt to impanel a special grand jury to look into alleged night riding and says he will call out troops and ask for Federal troops if necessary to put an end to such practices.

RICHARD BRAWNER INJURED BY AUTO

Richard Brawner, the little nine-year old grandson of Mrs. Emma Hudson, was struck by an automobile Sunday afternoon, sustaining a broken leg and a painful, tho not serious, wound on the head. The car was being driven by young William Alford Davidson, the accident occurring near the L. & N. Depot, between a large pile of timber and the R. R. switch, where the passway is very narrow. The little boy was playing on the R. R., near to which place were his aunts, Misses Edna and Anna Hudson, with whom he had gone out. No one seems to know just how the accident happened, but it is thought that he became confused in his effort to cross the narrow driveway, and the boy who was driving the car did not discover that he was attempting to cross, did not, or perhaps could not bring the car to a standstill, in time to avoid the child, as the fender of the auto struck the boy breaking the leg between the knee and thigh, throwing him to the ground which produced the scalp wound. Physicians attended the child immediately, and he is apparently doing nicely.

SEP. T. WILLIAMS SEEKS NOMINATION FOR CLERK

Sep. T. Williams, of Rob Roy, announces in this issue, his candidacy for the Republican nomination for County Court Clerk. Mr. Williams will be remembered as being a candidate for this position eight years ago. He is a progressive farmer and amply qualified for the performance of the duties connected with the office for which he asks his party's endorsement in the coming primary election.

J. E. MITCHELL WOULD BE NOMINEE FOR CLERK

J. E. Mitchell, of Dundee, is an announced candidate for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the County Court. Mr. Mitchell is 45 years old, an up-to-date farmer, a former teacher and fitted in every way to render capable service such as is required by the duties of the office for which he seeks to be nominated by the party with which he is affiliated. This is Mr. Mitchell's first time to announce for any office.

M. A. EMBREY SEEKS PLACE ON TICKET

M. A. Embrey, of Balzertown, is among those announcing in this issue for a position on the Republican ticket to be selected at the Primary election August the 6th. Mr. Embrey desires to receive the nomination for County Court Clerk. He is a farmer, teacher in the public schools, and a local Minister of the Baptist Church. Mr. Embrey is well qualified for the position he desires.

JOIN FOR PROTECTION

Governor Morrow Upholds Plans For Marketing Of Crops.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 22.—A voluntary organization of farmers for their mutual protection; for the purpose of making business plans for marketing their crops and for establishing and creating conditions that will bring about actual and honest competition in the purchase of their crops is not a violation of the anti-trust law according to Gov. Edwin P. Morrow.

The question of such an organization being in violation of the anti-trust law was brought to the attention of the governor today by a committee of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Incorporated, who came here to discuss the tobacco situation with the chief executive. In the delegation were Abe Renick, of Winchester; Gus A. Brown, of Mayslick; C. O. Hempling, of Boone County; Charles Long, of Carroll County and E. L. Harrison, of Lexington, who is president of the Farmers' Union and secretary of the Burley organization.

The delegation presented figures compiled by the department of agriculture, University of Kentucky, showing that it had cost an average of 35 cents a pound to raise the 1920 crop, and expressed the belief that if the tobacco growers would withhold their tobacco from the market until after an organization had been made that better prices would be offered for the tobacco. The plan of the organization is to cut out the 1921 crop and limit the acreage thereafter.

The governor said that the farmer has much to gain and nothing to lose by withholding his present crop from the market until the growers of the state had an opportunity to perfect an organization.

Mr. Harrison told the governor that the Burley growers in the twenty-six counties in which Burley tobacco is produced, are willing to co-operate with the organization by keeping the 1920 crop from the market until the farmers have organized.

After the conference Governor Morrow issued a statement which said, in part:

"I am now, and have been deeply interested in, and distressed over the tobacco situation in Kentucky. There is no doubt that the price now being paid for tobacco throughout the state does not represent more than half the cost of its production.

"Under high prices formerly paid by buyers the manufactured product has sold readily and at a very substantial and handsome profit to the manufacturer, but at the very greatly reduced price offered for the present crop, no substantial hope is held out that the finished product will be sold at any reduced price. If the farmer and the tenant sell his crop at the price now offered, he will not receive sufficient money to meet his obligations, settle his accounts at stores and banks, nor to make payments otherwise incident to growing the crop.

"I believe in the right and the necessity of the tobacco growers of Kentucky to form a voluntary organization for their mutual protection; for the purpose of making business plans for marketing their crops and for establishing and creating conditions that will bring about actual and honest competition in the purchase of their crops."

No Great Act Of Heroism Required
If some great act of heroism was necessary to protect a child from croup, no mother would hesitate to protect her offspring, but when it is only necessary to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and give it as soon as the first indication of croup appears, there are many who neglect it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is within the reach of all and is prompt and effectual.

REDS THREATEN AND GOVERNMENT DEFIES

In the chamber of deputies the government was questioned as to why Clara Zetkin, a Socialist member of the German reichstag, was permitted to enter Franco and to speak at the Socialist congress at Tours. This started a discussion which led Marcel Cachin, Socialist member who had made some fiery speeches in the Tours congress, to announce that the revolutionary efforts of the communist party would continue in spite of the government.

M. Steeg, minister of the interior, answered and warned the Socialists that revolutionary activity would be suppressed by all the means at the disposal of the government. Socialists Cachin was hissed and shouted at the end of his speech and at the conclusion of the debate an overwhelming vote of confidence was given to the government.

A large majority of the congress at Tours voted to affiliate with the Moscow international and to aid the Russian revolution with all their strength. The minority withdrew and called themselves the real Socialist party of France, while the others were called the Communist party.

MAKING CARBON-BLACK

The substitute for lampblack, known as carbon-black, is made by burning natural gas. It may also be made by burning oil but the oil product is not so black and is inferior in other respects. In the production of carbon-black from gas the carbon is deposited on moving steel channels above the burners, being scraped off by the movement of the channels over each other. Scientists now seek a method for producing the black by mixing other gases with natural gas, hoping that the appalling waste of the old process—only about 1.5 per cent of the carbon in the gas is recovered as black—will thus be eliminated.

To The Dyspeptic.

Would you not like to feel that your stomach troubles are over, that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? Consider then the fact that Chamberlain's Tablets have cured others—why not you. There are many who have been restored to health by taking these tablets and can now eat any kind of food that they crave.

FIR TREES VALUABLE

The fir tree not only yields flae lumber but numerous important commercial products are obtained from its resinous sap. By tapping the tree in such a manner as to exclude air from the incision a pitch rich in turpentine is obtained—twice as rich as the product obtained by ordinary methods. Besides turpentine the pitch yields fir oil from which artificial fruit flowers are prepared as well as varnish resins, burgundy pitch, medicinal oils etc. According to one authority, the pitch of firs and other conifers was developed as a means of protection for the trees in glacial times; in the present warmer period it is a more or less useless waste excretion.

PLAN INVASION OF U. S.

An anarchist named Fischer and a female companion arrested at Brest were found to possess documents proving the purpose of the Russian soviets to carry on extensive propaganda in the United States. They had steamship tickets but no passports to this country, and with the incriminating documents they had large sums of money and a box of jewelry. They admitted having come from Moscow and having participated in the "red terror" in Hungary. Police say hundreds of others have been commissioned to spread bolshevism in America.

WRANGLER REFUGEES SUFFER

Of all the horrible conditions produced by the great war and the smaller wars growing out of it, that of the 300,000 Russians from the Crimea driven out with Wrangel's army by the bolsheviks is the most pitiful. They are confined in concentration camps in Gallipoli, Tachatalda, and islands in the Mediterranean sea. Of these 100,000 are soldiers and 200,000 civilians. No nation wants them or will permit them to enter its territory. France has been feeding most of them at an expense of 1,000,000 francs a day but cannot continue and does not desire them in her territory. Greece watches them with bayonets. It has been suggested that the refugees be sent to the German colonies in Africa. In the meantime disease and starvation among them are fast increasing.

AUSTRIANS GIVE UP.

The Government of Austria has announced that it can continue no longer and that it is ready to turn the country over to the reparations committee of the allies. It is not a political crisis; it is an economic one. Austria can produce only a small part of the food her people need, and she has been largely supported by charity for months. Reduced by the treaty terms from 240,000 square miles to 45,000 and deprived of her mines, grain lands and most other resources, the country sees no hope but union with Germany. This has long been favored, but it is opposed by the allies. The value of the Austrian kronen is about 1-20th of normal, which makes it impossible for the country to purchase supplies abroad. For the first time in modern history an independent country is ready to turn itself over to outside control—to go into the hands of a receiver.

FRANCE WILL OPPOSE HALT IN ARMAMENT

Nation Feels Safety Lies In Being Prepared For Emergency.

By C. F. Bertelli.

Paris, Jan. 22.—Whatever suggestions toward world disarmament are made by Senator Harding after he assumes the American presidency will be blocked by France.

Though an official statement is obtainable today owing to Senator Harding not having issued any call for a disarmament conference pending his occupancy of the White House Universal Service has obtained the definite assurance that France will stand pat on her League of Nations declarations not only by refusing to disarm, but declining also to sign any covenant preventing her from increasing her army in the coming years.

This means that Senator Harding will fail absolutely if he attempts to tackle the disarmament problem from the point of view of land armies as well as navies, which program, it is declared by all experts, is most essential if the whole matter is not to end in a farce.

Measure of Protection.

From the most reliable sources I understand that Uruguay, Peru, Switzerland and probably Spain and Brazil, will take their cue from France, refusing to consider disarmament.

In explanation of her stand, France will state that the failure of the materialization of the Anglo-American pact to protect France, promised by the American and British treaty makers, compels her to keep a large army in order to protect herself from "future aggressions."

In contrast with France's attitude, Italy will agree wholeheartedly to disarm. In fact, she has already followed up her words by actions and is reducing her army to a total of 200,000 men as contrasted with France's 800,000. Italy is discharging 8,000 general officers and at the same time the Italian cabinet has agreed to a term of military service placed at a minimum of eight months' duration as against France's term of two years.

As for England, it is certain she will insist on disarmament, knowing that she is faced with the impossibility at the actual moment of keeping up with the United States in the matter of naval expenditures and knowing also that when the end of the "naval holiday" comes she will be economically and financially in the most advantageous position to compete with the United States in the matter of shipbuilding which now is a utter impossibility.

LONGITUDES LOCATED BY RADIO SIGNALS

The 129th degree of longitude east from Greenwich has been legally designated as the boundary line between South and West Australia. To mark this line on the earth experts have proposed to employ wireless longitude signals to determine an initial point on the line.

These signals are to be sent by high-power radio signals between the Greenwich, England, and Sydney, Australia, observatories and received simultaneously by the latter two. The governments of the United States and Great Britain have been asked to co-operate in the work. Signals from various stations have been tested. Although Lyons, France is by no means symmetrically located relative to Greenwich and Sydney, signals emanating there have been received at the two observatories when conditions were favorable.

ATMOSPHERIC ELECTRICITY

Italian newspapers tell about a newly-invented system for the transformation of static electricity in the atmosphere into dynamic current. Antennae bearing a radioactive collector are provided. The collector is joined to a transformer which is actuated by the radioactive matter through some chemical process, it is explained. The apparatus has worked so successfully in experiments that it will be reproduced on a larger scale.

EVANS THREW HIS CRUTCHES AWAY

Rheumatism And Other Troubles Overcome By Tanlac—Nothing Else Ever Helped Him.

I had one of the worst cases of rheumatism a man ever had, but after six bottles of Tanlac I threw my crutches away," said Thomas Evans, 119 West Chestnut Street, Akron, Ohio.

"My feet were so swollen at times with rheumatism that I could not get my shoes on," he continued, "and frequently my knee became so swollen that I could not get my clothes on. I finally became so helpless I could not work regularly.

"My stomach was also in a bad condition and I couldn't eat or sleep to do any good. I took all kinds of medicines, but my troubles stayed right with me. A stranger saw me in the street limping one day and asked me what the trouble was. I told him rheumatism and he said I was in the same fix he himself was in until he started taking Tanlac.

"He seemed so positive that Tanlac would help me that I began taking the medicine. The first bottle didn't seem to do me any good, but I stuck to it and the second bottle began to straighten me out and by the time I had finished the third bottle I was actually back at work again and I haven't lost a day since.

"I've taken six bottles now and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I haven't a sign of rheumatism about me and feel so strong and well that I am able to do as much work as I ever did in my life. My stomach is also in perfect condition and I can eat anything I want without any bad aftereffects.

"I really feel like a brand-new man and I hope some day to meet that stranger who advised me to take Tanlac so I can thank him for the advice he gave me."

Tanlac is sold in Hartford by Dr. L. B. Bean; in Beaver Dam, Ky., by R. T. Taylor, Jr.; and in McHenry by S. J. Tichenor.—Advertisement.

HOW ARE YOU SPARKING?

A detailed study of magnetos as they apply to the operation of farm tractors will be one of the principal features of the two-day tractor school to be held at Beaver Dam, Ky., Feb. 21 and 22 by County Agent M. L. McCracken in co-operation with the State College of Agriculture. The course will be under the direction of Earl G. Welch, of the Farm Engineering Department of the State College and free instruction in the care and operation of farm power units will be given to all persons in the county who are interested. Several local companies are co-operating with Mr. McCracken and it has been announced that representative types of farm tractors will be available for study.

In the study of magnetos care will be taken to explain common

SETS BASKET AT DOOR FOR BABIES; GETS 4

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 22.—Mrs. M. L. Leonard placed a small basket, lined with downy blankets, on her doorstep a week ago and announced thru Dallas newspapers that the basket would be kept there to receive homeless and unwanted babies.

This morning she took from the basket a ten-pound boy—the fourth baby to find haven there this week. "I do not know where they came from and I do not want to know," Mrs. Leonard said today. "But I do know that from now on they will be well taken care of and that they will go into good homes where they will be appreciated.

Mrs. Leonard said the basket will remain on the doorstep.

COSTS FALL 11.4 PCT FROM PEAK LAST JULY

New York, Jan. 22.—The cost of living in the United States decreased 11.4 per cent between July, 1920, when the peak of the rise since 1914 was reached, and January 1921, according to a statement yesterday by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The decrease between December, 1920, and January 1921, was 4.6 per cent. Despite this reduction the average prices January 1 were still 81.2 per cent above the pre-war level.

The decrease between December and January was brought about largely by the decline in food prices, which averaged 8 per cent during the month.

The price of clothing dropped 8.7 per cent within the month, but this item is of less importance in the total budget than food.

There was no change in the average rents or in the average cost of fuel, light or sundries, although changes in individual localities were noted.

TREATING KAISER TOO WELL

If the kaiser is getting a salary of $25,000,000 a year from Prussia, as has been widely charged, he is being paid much more than he is worth and Prussia is being double-crossed. At kaiserling he is no longer worth more than 40 marks a month. He has developed into a passable wood sawyer, but even at $8 a cord he could not make more than $50 a week. He is said to be writing his memoirs on the side. He would probably make more that way than any other, but certainly Prussia shouldn't pay him a salary for doing it. He might develop into a movie director, but it isn't necessary for Prussia to pay a fancy figure for his keep in the meantime. Leave him alone and make him hustle for himself.—Los Angeles Times.

WHAT DOES A TRACTOR LOOK LIKE INSIDE?

That internal combustion engines such as are used on tractors and automobiles are not complicated when analyzed in a systematic way is the statement of Earl G. Welch, extension specialist in Farm Engineering from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, who will conduct a two-day tractor school in Ohio County, February 21 and 22. The school will be held at Beaver Dam, under the auspices of County Agent M. L. McCracken, the state college of agriculture and several local agents and tractor companies who are co-operating. The school will be conducted free of charge for all farmers in this county who care to take it.

A systematic study of all parts of the internal combustion engine will be one of the features of the school, according to Mr. Welch. The mechanical system, the carburetor system, the cooling, ignition, air and gas lubrication and governing systems will all be explained in detail to those taking the course. Illustrated lectures will be given on the various subjects after which those enrolled in the course will be allowed to study the systems on representative types of machines which will be available.

All work connected with the school has been designed to make prospective owners and present owners of tractors more efficient operators. All phases in the care and operation of tractors will be given full attention both in lectures and laboratory work. Full particulars concerning the course may be obtained from County Agent M. L. McCracken.

When D. J. Partello, widely known collector of old violins, died at his Washington home he left $130,000 worth of valuable instruments of the famous old fiddle-makers. They include four Stradivarius violins in values ranging from $15,000 to $18,000; three Amatis, ranging from $2,000 to $4,000; a Guarnerius valued at $2500 and a Gagliano at $2000. The $15,000 Strad and the Guarnerius were once the property of the Duke of Edinburgh. Among others in the lot is a bow formerly used by Paganini, said to be worth $1000.

OPPOSES DELAY IN NAVAL DISARMAMENT

Borah Says Opponents Favor Waiting As Means To Kill Movement.

Washington, Jan. 22.—A suggestion of Elihu Root, former secretary of state, that a world conference on disarmament be delayed until after the inauguration of President-elect Harding, brought a sharp statement tonight from Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, author of a pending resolution asking the President to initiate negotiations looking to a reduction of naval building by the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

"Delay is one of the methods peculiarly adapted to killing any program of disarmament," said Senator Borah, adding that he regretted "exceedingly that Mr. Root should throw his great influence against the progress that is being made."

"It may be possible," said the senator, "and I presume it is probable that they can stop the passage of this resolution, but they can not stop the movement."

Comets Against Haste

Mr. Root's suggestion was contained in a letter read today before the House Naval Committee by Chairman Buller. He said "he felt strongly" that steps should be taken promptly after the new administration is established to bring about a general agreement on disarmament, but that "the precise method of procedure" ought not to be determined until after Mr. Harding and his secretary of state "have had an opportunity to inform themselves and reach conclusions as to the way which affords the best prospects of success." The former secretary of state also said "he did not feel like hazarding an opinion" as to what reply other governments might make to a suggestion from the American government that representatives be appointed to a disarmament conference. He declared that the subject was "especially difficult" because of the disturbed conditions of Eastern Europe and because too many nations have "special apprehensions of danger against which they wish to guard."

Senator Borah said in his statement that if the suggestion for delay had come from Mr. Harding he should have felt very much like deferring, but he added that he doubted if Mr. Harding "would wish to say that he wants delay in this matter until he can inform himself as to conditions with which I have no doubt he is entirely familiar."

League Is Failure.

"I doubt also," Senator Borah said, "if Mr. Harding would wish to say that he is going to appoint a Secretary of State who is not entirely familiar with the situation so far as the underlying principles are concerned." The Idaho Senator added that if Mr. Root or others would suggest some alternative plan which would expedite and not delay disarmament he would support it gladly.

Senator Borah said the treaty of Versailles had what amounted to a pledge for disarmament, but that two years after its drafting "the most stupendous programs for armaments ever known have been initiated by at least four of the great allied and associated powers."

The Best Cough Medicine.

This is why so many druggists use and recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. J. B. Jones, a well known druggist of Cullum, Ky., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for the past seven years, and have found it to be the best cough medicine I have ever known."

CIGARETTE PAPER TAKES UNITED STATES OUTPUT

Washington, Jan. 22.—If you get a piece of Federal currency and discover it is not made of linen threads don't get alarmed. It may not be counterfeit. It's due to another shortage, a shortage of linen threads.

Before the war the paper on which the currency was printed was manufactured from new linen cuttings. The war stopped that supply, according to William E. Broughton, Commissioner of Public Debt, and linen cuttings have not since been available in the world market. It has been necessary, therefore, to introduce cotton cuttings.

Currency made of cotton threads is of inferior quality and its life is short. It cannot be laundered as can that made of linen threads, and the Government cannot print it fast enough to supply the demand.

Mr. Croughton explained that the linen industry of the world has not returned to normal and that the principal source of raw material, Russia, is closed. The cigarette paper manufacturers absorb about all the stock that is available and they do not care what they pay for it, he said.

The Department of Agriculture has conducted experiments in an attempt to use flax fiber in the manufacture of paper currency without going thru the process of spinning and weaving, but the results so far have been negative.

HARDING STARTS FISHING CRUISE OFF FLORIDA

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 22.—The houseboat Victoria, with President-elect Harding and a party of friends aboard, left here this afternoon for a leisurely fishing cruise down the east coast of Florida and at dusk tied up for the night near Summerhaven, twenty miles to the south.

With his departure from St. Augustine, the President-elect said goodbye to his cares and virtually went into seclusion for two weeks of rest and recreation. He expects to come ashore at two or three points to play golf, but during most of the trip intends to be out of the public eye and to forget the problems that must be solved before March 4.

Mr. Harding reached St. Augustine from Miami shortly before noon, made a short call at the hotel which will be his home for a month after he returns from the fishing trip on February 7, and played a round of golf before going aboard the Victoria. A crowd applauded him when he alighted from his train and later a number of persons gathered at the pier to cheer him as the houseboat started on her voyage.

CAST WET PROXY VOTE.

Some weeks ago Representative Eagle, of Texas, was visiting at his old home in Kentucky, at the time the state Democratic convention was to meet. The local delegate decided that he couldn't well leave the work on his farm to attend and so he asked Eagle to go and take his proxy. The Texan consented to do so and before he left the old man reminded him: "If the wet and dry question comes up, you know where I always stood."

The question did come up and Eagle, knowing that his principal was a pronounced anti-prohibitionist, voted wet, his vote being the only anti-prohibition vote cast. The other delegates immediately sat up and took notice. "Who air this here stranger what votes wet?" someone inquired.

Eagle told who he was and explained that he represented a Texas district in congress. The delegates sat dumfounded at the thought of a Texan brazenly voting in a Kentucky Democratic convention but when Eagle told them of the proxy arrangement with the delegate from his old home county they admitted that the thing was perfectly right and regular.

And Your Vitality Runs Down

THEN TAKE PEPTO-MANGAN

You'll Pick Up Again Quickly With Plenty of Red Blood
Corpuscles.

Physicians nowadays take a blood test when you are run down. They count the red corpuscles in your blood. It happens right along. They are always on the lookout for indications of weak blood.

Why? Because they know when your blood is weak your resistance to disease is low. Your vitality and energy quickly run down.

You can tell when your blood is weak. You look pale, feel tired. You are not ill, but you don't feel right. You don't want to do things. That is the time to take the well-known tonic, Pepto-Mangan.

Pepto-Mangan builds red blood corpuscles. Physicians have prescribed it for thirty years.

Pepto-Mangan is sold in liquid and tablet form. The medicinal value is exactly the same. Take either kind you prefer. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." The full name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," should be on the package.—Advertisement.

HARDING URGES NEED OF UNITY

New Spirit Of Nationalism Asked For In Message To The South.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21.—A new spirit of united Americanism, holding itself above sectional and partisan divisions and making secure the industries of the whole nation alike, was bespoken by President-elect Harding tonight in a message to the people of the South.

The message, written at the request of Clark Howell editor, of the Atlanta Constitution and Democratic national committeeman for Georgia, was made public here on the arrival of the train which is taking the President-elect to Florida. It follows:

"Of course, I have no message to the people of the South that I would not gladly utter to all the United States. Perhaps the South would be interested to know however, of one ambition which I cherish. I want to be the instrumentality in establishing that complete concord of union which I hold to be essential to the American fulfillment. I realize how the political solidarity of the South followed the unfortunate days of the Civil War. I know how that solidarity has been encouraged on the one hand and I think I understand the desire to break it on the other hand.

"It is not specifically a Republican ambition. It is rather to be accredited to a desire to establish complete mutuality of purpose and oneness of ambition in America.

There is little left of the old-time hostility and there isn't any occasion for any section of America to pin its aspirations, to the fortunes of one party. I think it is fair to assume that all political parties mean to be best for our common country. As a Republican, I believe that many of the Republican policies are calculated to best serve all of America. For instance, I believe there is a great significance in the coming tariff Congress to be held in Atlanta. I believe most cordially in prospering America first. I do not see how we can retain our home markets, upon which American good fortune must be founded and at the same time maintain American standards of production and American standards of living unless we make other peoples with lower standards pay for the privilege of trading in the American markets. Ours is the best market in the world, because we are largest in consumption and the ablest to buy. The application lies in a perfectly justifiable ambition to make the Southland as industrially eminent as the states of the North and East.

"There ought to be the flame of industry here in exceptional significance because of your vast natural resources. Your people want precisely the same things which are found in the natural ambitions of the North and West. There isn't the slightest excuse for a sectional line in America. We are one people, with one flag, and it is folly to allow long-time prejudices to stand in the way of the fullness of understanding and the utmost cordiality of relationship.

"The people of the South are just as much interested as any other geographical location in the development of an American merchant marine. Out of our abundance of resources, out of our greater ability to produce and out of our boasted American efficiency ought to come American emulment in world-wide trade. We ought to send our cargoes from Southland ports just as numerously as we do from Northern and Western ports. Of course, as a general rule, we can not sell where we do not buy, but with a national economic policy safeguarded in protective tariffs we can buy the things, the production of which is not essential to our own good fortune, and expand our trade with those of whom we buy to supply our own needs which can not be supplied here at home.

"I am sure the incoming administration wishes to see, figuratively speaking, every Southern port whitened by the sails of commerce and know that our carriers are taking messages of good will and amity along with our cargoes to all the parts of the earth."

FEW AMERICANS CAN HEAR OR SEE STRAIGHT

Boston, Jan. 22.—"Very few Americans can hear straight or see straight. It is striking how incompetent they are in these directions," Charles W. Elliot, president-emeritus of Harvard University, said, at a conference of New England educators today. Dr. Elliot made a plea for a radical transformation of the educational system to obliterate "herd impulses," and to release individuality.

"There is an extraordinary amount of credulity in the American people in flying rumors and news of the day," he declared. "That credulity is something to which the attention of the educators must be devoted. It is a new development, highly unpromising, in the last thirty years. We are more and more becoming subject to what I may call 'herd impulses,' gregarious impulses, common emotions."

Dr. Elliot said physical training was the most important movement of the day.

"We are leading hasty, busy, too busy lives," he continued. "It is a great threatening blight; it threatens not only the mental health of the people, but the physical health as well. More and more we see men in active business, breaking down and we see the reduced capacity of women for child-bearing all due to this hurrying, bustling life to which we are subjected. Some very important changes are needed in the American school. I think it is fundamental that we have new methods of instruction of discipline and of training."

HOME BREWERS HIT BY NEW DECISION

Detroit, Jan. 17.—A ruling by the United States Treasury Department at Washington that manufacturers of home brewed beer are subject to penalty of $1,000 was received today by John A. Grogan, collector of internal revenue for the Eastern Michigan district. The ruling stipulates manufacture of home brew is a violation even where there is no sale or evidence of consumption, it was announced.

The ruling was asked by Grogan in the case of a Detroit man and the revenue collector was authorized to begin action to collect a penalty of $1,000 from the Detroit, who is charged with manufacture and possession of beer.

The Treasury Department holds, according to Grogan, that the Detroit is liable to penalty as a manufacturer under section 35 of the national prohibition act. "The penalty applies," Mr. Grogan announcing the ruling said "wherever intoxicating malt liquors have been manufactured, this, regardless of the ultimate disposition of the product, it applying in home brew cases as well as in cases involving sale of the product."

The penalty it was explained, is similar to the percentage penalty imposed on a delinquent income tax payer and is not a fine resulting from criminal prosecution.

BRITISH DIVER SINKS; 56 ON BOARD PERISH

London, Jan. 22.—British submarine K-5 Commander John A. Gaines, was lost with all hands Thursday at the approaches to the English Channel, the Admiralty announced this afternoon.

The disaster to the K-5 occurred while she was practicing with four other submarines of the "K" class. She submerged and never rose to the surface again. Vessels of this class carry approximately six officers and fifty men. A full complement of officers and men was aboard.

The "K" class of submarines is the latest type of British submarines, the vessels being 338 feet in length, with a surface speed of twenty-four knots and a speed submerged of nine knots. They carry eight torpedoes, one four-inch and one three-inch gun.

The cause of the disaster is not known.

The four other "K" boats have been ordered to proceed to Vigo, Spain, where an inquiry is to be held.

The submarine flotilla formed part of the Atlantic fleet which left early in the week for a special cruise to Spanish ports and Gibraltar. The submarines were proceeding down the channel from Portsmouth when they encountered a gale, and took refuge in Tor Bay, on the Devonshire coast, until Wednesday.

This might be properly designated as candidate's issue.

President-elect Harding could have gained and held our warmest gratitude by taking us on that fishing trip, and while he doubtless knows more about running the government of the U. S. A., than we do, yet we might have been able to show him a trick or two about fishing, that heing our long suit.

The Washington Note in his notes blamed President-elect Harding for the overpowering, gorgeous and costly inaugural, that was to be, and now said notes blame him still, that it is to be a simple affair, and I'll be damned if I believe that Harding will ever be blameless in the eyes of the Note, for doing whatever he may, or if he does not do at all. So what's the use?

If tobacco growers drag along, gradually turn their weed over to buyers at present market prices—prices absolutely set by a few of the big tobacco heads, in the face of the fact that all are talking a big reduction in the crop this coming season, if they do continue to sell, and reduce next spring, they, the farmers, will most assuredly be playing into the hands of the very people whom they now see in control. Low prices now, but with the tobacco in the hands of the speculators and manufacturers and the crop cut out next season means millions of dollars for those who possess the weed.

Again, we would dare to say to the Washington Note that there is some little, if not a vast difference in feeding ten or a dozen unfortunates at the County Alms house and treating scores and scores of poor, demented and diseased persons who are sent to the hospitals at public expense for just that purpose. Had the man appointed, of whom Mr. Likens complains, been a Kentucky Republican, he would in all probability, in his notes, charged that it was Rotten Republican politics. Republicans have not been heard to complain and we fail to see just why he should raise a rumpus about the matter.

In this issue we formerly announce the candidacy of a number of aspirants for the Republican nomination for various offices, to be voted for next November. We did not have either the space or time to say as much about the announced candidates as we ordinarily would have liked, but we may add here, that all are good citizens, worthy, and to the best of our knowledge, gained by personal contact and observation in almost every instance, qualified for the positions sought. So from our viewpoint whoever may be successful in the primary to be held August the 6th will,
if successful in the final election,
serve the interest of the whole people with credit to themselves and the party placing its approval upon them in the choice to be made August the 6th. There can be no blame attached to any for doing their honorable best to win. One who announces, or asks for a nomination and then fails in making a thorough and high class effort to succeed, should not, and is not likely to win, neither does such a one deserve to succeed in the test to follow in November. Those who are asking for places on the ticket compose a bunch of goodly fellows, men who ought to campaign openly and above board and knowing each of those thus far in the field we bespeak for them a spirited, tho gentlemanly and high toned contest. Whether it should be necessary, or even a matter of good taste for us to do so, yet we wish to advise and warn any who may possess such a thing as a grouch escape to see to it, that the cut-out is ever in its place, securely locked and sealed—a quiet, smooth running machine never fails to attract the most favorable attention and comment. No one wants the other sort.

Don't fail to see "The Big Black Face Minstrel" which will be given at Hartford School Building on Thursday evening, Feb. 3, at 8 o'clock.
This will cause you to wear a smile for days. It is made up of local talent, consists of six-piece orchestra and featuring all the latest song hits. Did you see the "Womanless Wedding"?
We intend for our Minstrel to be as great a hit—given under auspices of Parent-Teacher Association. Admission 25c and 35c. Don't forget the date, February 3rd, 1921.

STRAY STREAKS

(By Fluko McFluke.)

We just know we have some of the best neighbors to be found anywhere:
frinstance, our next-door neighbor killed a couple of hogs last week and when we found it out we says to 'em as how we liked hog liver'n things and they at once give us a big slug of liver, then we happened to think of sausage, and our mouth always did water for good, fresh pork sausage, we just couldn't keep from telling said neighbor as to how we loved it,
the sausage, and then next morning before breakfast, said neighbor sent over a nice plate of sausage and when we expressed our thanks for the sausage we accidentally mentioned fresh pork ham, and how nice it was to have and how good and everything, and don't you know that good lady nearly gave us the hama, outem one of them hogs? Yes-sir-ree! she did that, she give us the hind feet often which the hams had been, by mistake, severed. No, we didn't miss the ham much nohow.

Fonza Midkiff says he has always believed implicitly and with the most abiding trust, everything in the Republican, especially since John Henry Thomas left it, but somehow, our tory of that 9-foot high negro, weighing nearly 600 pounds, for whom 25 yards of cottonade was necessary to make him a pair of overalls, sorter made him sit up and wonder if after all, it was not possible for us to be misinformed sometime on certain facts and happenings. Fonza says he would shore like to see the negro, though, with his own eyes.

Our good friend, I. D. Claire, in his paragraph on or about Battle says as how Adam said "It was not good for man to be alone." We dasent start an argument with I. D. C., but we would like to know for certain if it was not the Lord who said that, and not old Adam?

We have field fence, rabbit and poultry fence, and barbed wire fence.

HEAVY SLEET.

This section of the country was visited by a severe sleet which formed Monday night and Tuesday, from a slow, but protracted rain. Telephone wires and timber was loaded to the limit, many lines being broken and quite a bit of damage done fruit and other trees. In many places, we are informed, the damage was more severe than at this particular point.

The Sun came up bright and fair yesterday morning and practically all ice slipped from wires, and the timber was also greatly relieved of its burden, especially where the sun had a chance to penetrate.

BASKET BALL.

The local high school basket ball team, composed of Ellis, Bartlett, Williams, Robertson, Crove, Shultz and Rhoads, accompanied by Prof. Roy H. Foreman, went to Burlington yesterday where they played the high school team of that place last night. The Hartford H. S. Quintette defeated the high school team of West Louisville, last Friday night on the local court by the score of 33 to 15. The first half of the game was snappy and fast but the last period was rather tame and uninteresting, much of the time being consumed by whistle blowing.

The local boys have a tough proposition facing them in the game tomorrow night, in the Shepherdsville net tossers. This team from Shepherdsville is said to be one of the best in that portion of the State and if the locals can get from under in this match, they may feel proud of themselves.

MARVIN McCROCKLIN IS FATALLY INJURED.

Marvin McCrocklin, aged 26 years, was fatally injured in the mines of the W. G. Duncan Coal Co., last Saturday at Graham. Young McCrocklin was a motorman for the Company and after throwing a switch attempted to board the motpr, but missed his step or slipped in some manner and was run over by the motor and four cars loaded with coal. He was rushed to a hospital but succumbed to his

WORTH TICHENOR OUT FOR RE-ELECTION.

Worth Tichenor, present Jailer of Ohio County, is asking the Republican party for re-nomination, to succeed himself to that office. He is well known to the voters and an introduction is wholly unnecessary, as by his former canvass of the County and performance of his duties during this, his first term, he has been brought into contact with a large portion of Ohio County's citizens, whose support he seeks.

JUDGE MACK COOK FOR RE-ELECTION.

Mack Cook, who is rounding out his first term as Judge of the Ohio County Court, is a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself. Judge Cook needs no special introduction to the voters of Ohio County as he goes before the people upon his record made during the past three years of service, rendered to the best of his ability, in the interest of the whole County.

THOSE "BLUE LAWS"

(Pathfinder)

Now that everyone is talking about "blue laws" there is a great deal of interest in the original "blue laws" of Connecticut of nearly 300 years ago. Many perhaps are under mistaken impressions as to the origin of the name since the word "blue" has come to be associated with rigorous measures of any kind.

The fact is that the term was derived from the blue paper covers in which the first collection of the laws was bound, in 1650. The term was first used in England, where copies of the book made their way and caused much sarcastic merriment.

Here are some of the laws it meant death to break:

"If any man, after due conviction, shall have, or worship any other God but the Lord God, he shall be put to death."

"Whosoever shall profane the Lord's day or any part of it, by work or sport, shall be punished by fine, or corporally. But if the court by clear evidence, find that the sin was proudly, presumptuously, and with a high hand committed against the command and the authority of the blessed God, such person therein despising and reproaching the Lord shall be put to death."

"If any man have a stuhhor, rebellious son of 16 years old who will not obey the voice of his father or mother, and being chastened will not hearken unto them, then shall his father and mother lay hold on him and bring him to the magistrates assembled in court, and testify unto them that their son is stubborn and rebellious, and will not obey their voice, but lives in sundry crimes; such a son shall be put to death."

If any man turned Quaker he was first banished but if he did not stay banished he was put to death. It was also against the law to furnish food or lodging to a "Quaker, Adamite, or other heretic." Now the Quakers are highly esteemed everywhere.

Every person who was absent from public worship on Lord's day, or who should withdraw therefrom was fined five shillings "for every such sinful mis-carriage." Some further Sabbath laws were as follows: "No one shall run on the Sabbath day, or walk in the garden, or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting. No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds sweep house, cut hair shave on the Sabbath or fasting day. No woman shall kiss her child on the Sabbath or fasting day. If any man shall kiss his wife or wife kiss her husband on the Lord's day, the party in fault shall be punished at the discretion of the court of magistrates."

Though the Sabbath day was kept strictly there was no great freedom on other days of the week, as may be seen from the following law which applied to every day: "No one shall read common prayer (Episcopalian), keep Christmas or saints day, make minced pies, dance, play cards, or play on an instrument except the drum, trumpet or Jew's-harp." Whoever brought cards or dice into the domain was condemned to pay a fine of five pounds.

Women's clothes were not overlooked by these stern law-makers, who evidently saw a tendency to too much display. It was decreed "that ladies' dresses should be made long enough to hide their shoe-buckles, and that their sleeves should cover the arms to the wrists. Both axes were forbidden to wear clothes trimmed with gold, silver, or bone lace "above two shillings by the yard."

Here are some of the laws governing the relations between the sexes: "No man shall court a maid in person or by letter without first obtaining the consent of her parents."

"When parents refuse their children convenient marriages the magistrates shall determine the point."

"Married persons must live together or be imprisoned."

"A man that strikes his wife shall be fined 10 pounds. A woman that strikes her husband shall be punished."

DOLLER SPIED ON
BY JAPS, HE SAYS

Franklin D'Oller, Past National Commander of the American Legion, who has just returned from a trip to the Orient, recently related details of how he was constantly under the surveillance of supposed agents of the Japanese government during his stay in that country.

Based their action on the ridiculous assumption that Mr. D'Oller was in the country to organize American veterans into a reserve, the Japanese according to the National Commander, made a practice of searching his baggage and ransacking his personal papers and effects in almost every stopping place. His "guide," Mr. D'Oller said, was in reality a spy.

The Legion official left this country shortly after the second Legion convention at which approval of the California Japanese exclusion laws was voted and it is believed that the Japanese fancied that Mr. D'Oller's mission was official instead of a pleasure tour.

WILSON VOICES VIEW ON LAST ELECTION

Washington, Jan. 22.—At last something tangible in the way of President Wilson's views on the presidential election, in which the Democratic entry went down to such an overwhelming defeat, has found its way out of the White House. Some one commenting upon the Democratic candidate's proposed travels made this remark to the President:

"I notice that Governor Cox is leaving for Europe to view the devastated regions resulting from the late war."

"Why should the governor go so far afield?" was the question with which the President made his cryptic comment, according to White House reports.

UNCLE JOE'S PURSE KEPT HIM AT HOME

At the Republican convention in Chicago last summer the veteran statesman Chauncey M. Depew, who is 86 and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who is 84, got into a heated argument as to which had been attending political conventions the longer. "Why Joe," said Depew, "you know you're only a comparatively young man and can't figure in the same class with me in convention history. I was at the 1864 convention and I know that you didn't attend until later."

"You're both children," observed L. E. Payn, a member of the New York delegation, who had been listening to the conversation. "I attended the 1860 convention."

"Yes," said Cannon, "and I'd have been on hand too but Abe Lincoln beat me in a lawsuit the week before and I hadn't the money to pay the $2 a week board bill even if I had walked to save the railroad fare."

"SHIMMY" TOO NAUGHTY FOR REDSKIN YOUTHS

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—Modern jazz music and dancing are making Indian wild again. The roll of the snare drum and the wail of the saxophone, combined with the "toddle" and the "shimmy" stir atavistic memories of the tom tom and the shriek of the victim at the stake.

So asserted Dr. Henry Beets, of Grand Rapids, Mich., secretary of missions of the Christian Reformed Church, in an address here today before the session of the Friends of the Indian.

A resolution, introduced by Dr. Beets, which would forbid Indian youths and girls from dancing the modern steps, was adopted and will be sent to the Indian bureau of the Department of the Interior at Washington.

AMERICAN LEGION OPPOSING ANTI-CIGARETTE LAWS

Kansas members of the American Legion are in the throes of a struggle as champions of the cigarette. The fight is centered at Topeka where the local post has urged the repeal of the Kansas law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes. Dr. William A. McKeever, of the University of Kansas, author of the anti-cigarette law, and leading opponent of the Legion's stand, has appealed to the ex-soldiers to "turn aside from the selfish cigarette and come out on the side of Christ and Kansas" and has proposed a debate with the Legionnaires on the question of the cigarette as a menace. Legion members, in a recent resolution, asked Governor Allen to urge the repeal of the anti-cigarette law.

A REAL HAIR GROWER

"Since the country went dry," remarked former Representative La Guardia, of N. Y., at a banquet the other day, "I understand that there are several states where a certain brand of hair tonic has become quite popular for beverage purposes. And, as a good hair tonic should, this one gives those who use it a turred tongue."

MINISTER CONFESSES TO ROBBING MAILS

Mount Vernon, Ill., Jan. 21.—Guy Kyle, former rector of the Free Methodist Church, of Mount Vernon, arrested today in connection with the theft here last Friday of thirty-one packages of registered mail containing $185,000 in cash, confessed tonight he was implicated in the robbery, postoffice inspectors announced.

The inspectors said Kyle accompanied them to one of his garages, where they located $5,600 more of the stolen money, bringing the total amount recovered to about $190,000.

Kyle also implicated several others in the theft, according to the inspectors, who declined to go into the details of his confession.

No additional arrests have yet been made, it was said.

Had Denied Knowledge.

Kyle's alleged confession followed a lengthy examination by inspectors. He previously denied all knowledge of the crime, asserting the money was placed on his property without his knowledge.

Approximately $100,000 was recovered at the Kyle home, where it was concealed in an egg crate, and about $75,000 and $1,200, respectively in two garages of which the Rev. Mr. Kyle is part owner.

Suspicion was directed against the former rector this morning when Loren Williamson, Kyle's partner in the garage business, informed the inspectors that Kyle had been displaying large amounts of money in the last week.

Believe Securities Burned.

Postoffice inspectors expressed the belief that the $27,000 in negotiable securities, which also were stolen, had been burned to destroy possible clues.

The Rev. Mr. Kyle is about 45 years old and came here seven years ago from Illinois. He was rector of the Free Methodist Church for three years and for four years has been in the garage business.

He probably will be taken to Danville for arraignment.

UNEMPLOYED MAKE THREATS

In Norwich the men out of work demanded increased relief from the city under the existing poor law. When the officials refused this a threat of "direct action" was made by the men, who said they refused to starve, and additional taxes were levied to meet the need. This brought a protest from the taxpayers that they could not stand any more as business was stagnant. A householder now has to pay more in taxes than in rent.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

County Assessors Assist in Collecting Farm Statistics.

The annual collection of basic agricultural statistics, principally the acreage planted to each crop, by county assessing officers under State laws, is now carried on in 21 States and has been of great benefit. The wide adoption of this plan resulted from the experience during the war emergency, when States like Kansas, with such laws in operation, were able to obtain definite data regarding county food and feed production and supply, while other States suffered great anxiety, inconvenience, and damage from the lack of such knowledge.

The crop reporting service of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, has given full assistance and encouragement to this movement, because data secured in this manner furnish the best check yet devised on the accuracy of its estimates and permit an annual revision of any biased or erroneous estimates. Instead of allowing inaccuracies to accumulate in the annual forecasts during the 10 years the Bureau of Crop Estimates, monthly, of county and district estimates intervening between Federal censuses. It will also permit the issuance by for important products, which would be unsatisfactory without such an annual check.

It is hoped by department statisticians that such a law will be speedily enacted in every State. The benefits of such full and dependable data concerning the State and each county annually are very great to agricultural producers and to all business interests affected by farm output and purchasing power.

Eviction Notices Served to Woodchuck and Beaver.

"If a woodchuck would chuck wood always" and leave root crops, clover, and alfalfa alone he would not now be in trouble with the Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture. The woodchuck committed the error of believing that the introduction of these crops into the Northwestern States constituted an invitation to the whole 'chuck family to come and dine. The depredations inflicted by the animal in the Northwestern States and in New England are causing heavy losses, especially to truck growers and gardeners. In many instances wide strips of vegetation around the edges of the fields have been totally destroyed. The Biological Survey sent to those sections where the ravages were serious representatives to give eradication demonstrations to the farm owners. Woodchucks are resourceful creatures and easily adapt themselves to changed environments. This characteristic has led the bureau specialists to devise new methods of control which have been proved successful.

By doing what the woodchuck would not do, the beaver has made himself an unwelcome tenant in some parts of the Northwest. The beaver's willingness to cut wood, timber, and orchard trees led to serious damage in some orchard and timberlands. Unlike the woodchuck, however, the beaver is a valuable fur animal, and his propagation is encouraged, so the methods employed against the 'chuck could not be used in the case of the beaver. The Bureau of Biological Survey has solved the problem by arranging with the State game officials for the capture of beavers and their removal to streams where they can multiply without endangering valuable timber supplies and crops.

Under favorable conditions cowpeas after being cut for hay will sprout again from the base. Considerable pasturage or even a second crop of hay or seed is sometimes procured, especially in the Gulf coast region, if good moisture conditions follow the first cutting. Ordinarily, however, but a single cutting can be obtained.

Popularizing Agricultural Statistics With Charts.

Substantial progress was made during the last fiscal year by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, in the preparation by the field statisticians of special articles, charts, maps, and exhibits of various kinds showing the outstanding features of the crop conditions, prospective yields, supply, stocks, and prices. The advantages of presenting agricultural statistics and estimates in these forms are readily seen. While important facts in an article or table may not be generally read or understood, even by persons interested financially, they can be presented by means of charts, maps, graphs, and diagrams, which are really pictures, in striking form easily understood by the average man. Because of its attractiveness as news matter, such material secures very wide circulation thru newspapers, magazines, farm journals and the like, which are disinclined to print simple statistical tables and text, no matter how important because statistics are looked upon as dry and not interesting news matter.

The growing use of the crop reports, coupled with the fact that the offices of the agricultural statisticians are visited daily by newspaper reporters seeking such news matter, indicates the growing interest in crop estimates.

34 States Given Federal Aid in War On Hog Cholera.

The United States Department of Agriculture during the last fiscal year cooperated with 34 States in investigating reported outbreaks of hog cholera, administering treatment, preventing the disease from spreading, and stamping out the contagion by approved methods of cleaning and disinfecting premises, pens, and yards, where cholera-sick hogs had been held.

In addition, Bureau of Animal Industry veterinarians conducted demonstrations, assisted veterinary practitioners in improving their technique and conducted general educational work. During the greater part of the year, 140 veterinarians devoted their time to the control of hog cholera, but in the last quarter, when it became evident that such activities would be curtailed during the fiscal year 1921, owing to lack of funds, the number of veterinarians was reduced. For the same reason it became necessary to reduce the educational part of the work.

What can be done with the cup of cooked cereal left from breakfast? The economical housekeeper dislikes to throw it out, but how can she use it so that her family will like its second appearance at the family board? The following solutions of the problem are offered by the home economics specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Remnants of cereal breakfast foods may often be utilized in making scalloped dishes, souffles and omelets, in thickening soups or gravies, in making muffins and griddle cakes, and in many other ways. Also they can sometimes be reheated or tinned and added to a new supply. The practice of frying the left-overs of boiled hominy or of cornmeal mush is as old as the settlement of this country, and the nursery song about the "bag pudding the queen did make" from King Arthur's harley meal shows us that for centuries other cereal puddings have been treated in the same way. In so-called "oatmeal oysters" small portions of the left-over cereal are dipped in eggs and crumbs and fried. The use of leftover rice and other cereals in croquettes, puddings, etc., is well known.

Cold cooked farina or similar cereal may be utilized in the following way:

Farina Pudding:
1 cup cold, cooked farina.
1 tablespoon cornstarch.
1 egg.
1 cup milk.
1-3 cup sugar.
1-2 cup seeded raisins.
1-8 teaspoon cinnamon.
A speck of ground cloves.
A little salt, if desired.

Bake in a medium oven until brown or heat on top of the stove. Dried figs or dates or stewed fruit may be substituted for the raisins.

Boiled rice and pearl barley are often used in soup, and there is no reason why small quantities of coarse samp or any other cereal which will keep its shape fairly well should not be used up in the same way. Similarly, remnants of macaroni broken into small pieces may be used in the place of vermicelli or other special soup pastes. Such practices serve the double purpose of using material that would otherwise be wasted and of giving a little variety to a simple diet by inexpensive means.

Oatmeal cookies, a toothsome and wholesome sweet for the school lunch may be made of 1 egg, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup rolled oats, 2 teaspoons melted fat, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Beat the eggs, add sugar gradually, and stir in other ingredients. Drop a spoonful at a time on a well-greased tin and bake in a moderate oven.

Keep Necessary Accounts and Know How To Use Them.

In making a record of the farm business, the item of labor income can not be determined accurately without some system of accounting. Some farmers will require accounts showing the amounts expended for labor, others on the amount paid for food, and still others on the amount received for crops sold. A memorandum of such items will prove valuable when the time comes to calculate the year's business. The matter of farm accounting, according to the specialists who have studied the problem, is not dependent upon any particular form or blank book—the real secret of success lies in knowing what accounts to keep and how to make use of them. Farmer's Bulletin 541 suggests the sort of accounts most needed.

Great Returns Earned by Boys' and Girls' Clubs.

Supervision of boys' and girls' poultry clubs by the United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with State agricultural colleges, was continued during the last fiscal year in seven States, where there were 1,186 clubs with 29,480 members, of whom 12,786 made reports from which the following totals have been compiled: Eggs set, 731,709; chicks hatched 610,478; value of products sold $94,791.32; value of stock on hand, $382,277.37; exhibits held, 712; members exhibiting, 5,615; prizes received, $9,681.11.

Marked Growth in Dairying Shown in Southern States.

In the Southern States the work conducted by the Dairy Division, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to promote dairying and the consumption of dairy products has shown marked results. The efforts last year were directed largely toward increasing the use of milk and dairy products on the farm thru campaigns for cows on every farm, and improving farm dairy products by practical demonstrations in schools and in farm kitchens. In Louisiana 274 cottage-cheese demonstrations, 207 butter-making demonstrations and 235 demonstrations on milk products were made, and 26 meetings were held. As a result, 2,639 families were reported as using more milk, 178 cows were brought in where there were none before, 34 boys' and girls' clubs were organized, and much improved dairy apparatus was purchased.

In South Carolina the activities resulted in the increased use of milk in 1,384 families and in the purchase of 73 family cows. 60 demonstrations were given in butter making and 38 in making other dairy products.

GOODBYE HIGH HEELS IF UTAH BILL PASSES

Salt Lake City, Jan. 18.—The text of the bill to prohibit high-heeled shoes in Utah was made public today at a meeting of representatives of women's clubs in conference with legislators at the capitol.

The bill is so far reaching that the person found with a pair of such shoes in his possession is subject to a fine of from $24 to $500 for the first conviction and from $500 to $1,000 for every additional offense, and imprisonment of from 30 days to one year. It is drawn to take effect on and after January 1, 1925. The height of heels permitted is one and a half inches.

METHODISTS TO SPEND MILLION IN PHILIPPINES

Manila, P. I., Jan. 22.—One million and a quarter dollars will be spent in the Philippine Islands by the Methodist Episcopal Church in the next five years, according to Dr. Joseph F. Cottingham, conference evangelist of the local Methodist mission, who has just returned to the islands after an absence of two years.

The mission plans to erect 500 buildings and to participate in the construction of two educational institutions.

While back home in the West some months ago a prominent senator made a speech on the league of nations. He had a packed house and, though his hearers represented about every shade of opinion on the league question it was noted that they applauded his remarks heartily from start to finish. Some time afterward, the story goes, a curious citizen inquired of a man who had heard the speech how it happened that it met the approval of everybody, as it seemed to have done.

"Well, you see," the man replied, "the senator put in the first 20 minutes arguing for the league. Then he talked 20 minutes against the league, and then he gave the last five minutes of rebuttal."

P.A. UNIVERSITY TO DIG FOR RELICS IN PALESTINE

Philadelphia, Jan. 22.—Announcement was made today by the University of Pennsylvania Museum that it has decided to begin excavations in Palestine at Beth-Shan, in the Valley of Megiddo, next June.

Permission has been granted by the civil authorities, the announcement said.

The site has been excavated and it is expected that many relics will be found which will throw light on the early history of Palestine.

A MOSIAC UTTERANCE.

It is true, as we are glad and proud to believe that the United States played a leading part in bringing the war to a close. "Unt" says Senator Moises, "I do not believe that a man who rescues a girl from the surf must necessarily marry her."

'GROWLING' MOUNTAIN MAY BE CAGED VOLCANO

Winston-Salem, N. C., Jan. 22.—An investigation of Flat Shoal Mountain was demanded today by residents of Stokes County, this State.

Dwellers in the vicinity charge that it has rumbled and growled at intervals for a year, wrecking their peace of mind.

The sound was like distant blasting they said, and evergreens and trees on the mountain were dyed. Fearing they might have a caged volcano to deal with, the citizens asked that Government earthquake experts be sent to look into the disturbance.

400 GRAFTS ON ONE TREE.

An apple tree, originally a Ben Davis, at the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster, O., has 400 scions of different apple varieties growing on it. The tree is used solely for testing seedling apples grown in various parts of the state. Fruit from each graft is carefully tested for appearance, quality, marketability and culinary qualities.

THE COUNTRY'S REAL NEED

The question of what the country needs to remedy the many ills from which it is suffering and put it on its feet again was being discussed at some length in the senate one day. After listening to numerous diagnoses and prescriptions Vice-President Marshall leaned over and in an audible whisper to his assistant secretary expressed the opinion that "what this country needs is a really good five-cent cigar."

DUTCH "DRY'S" ARE ACTIVE

The "dry" forces in Holland have succeeded in putting thru a bill increasing the tax on spirits 150 per cent and that on beer 100 per cent. The new tax will make spirits practically prohibitive for the poor. The present tax on beer is only a fraction of a cent a glass and the increase will affect the price very little.

SHAPES OF HUMAN HAIR.

Scientists tell us of a striking general correspondence between the shape of the heads of different races of mankind and the cross-section shape of the hair covering these respective heads. For instance, the average American's head is oval in shape and his hair as shown by the microscope, is oval in cross section. The negro's head is more or less oblong—roughly oblong square—and his hair is similar in cross section. This peculiar shape is responsible for its kinky nature. The Chinaman's head, which is round, is covered with cylindrical hair.

DIPLOMATS IGNORE KING.

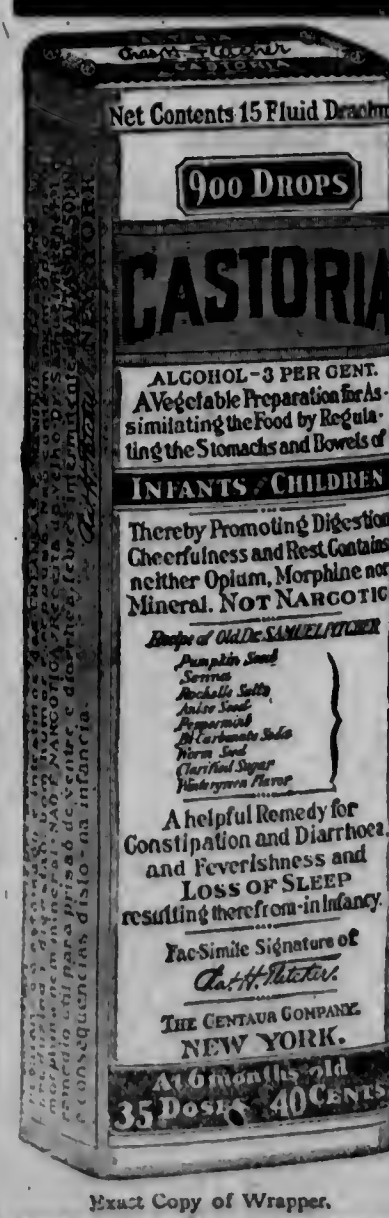

When King Constantine appeared before the Greek assembly to read his first message not a diplomat was present from any of the allied countries. The American minister likewise remained away. Only six Venezuelan representatives appeared, 90 absenting themselves. The king recommended in his message the popularization of the constitution and the creation of a senate. Now Greece has but one legislative chamber, the "boule."

The diplomats from the allied countries denounced the use by the Greek government of 200,000,000 drachmas of paper currency printed without the consent of the loan commission. The ministers have also declined to visit the palace of the king.

TO PROBE CAUSE OF GLACIAL PERIOD

A special geological investigation of the valleys of the Hudson, St. Lawrence and Connecticut rivers has been undertaken by a Swedish geological expedition, headed by Baron de Geer, under the auspices of the American-Scandinavian foundation. Particular attention is to be given to fixing the dates of the first appearance of man in the three valleys and to substantiation of the theory that climatic changes rather than volcanic disturbances were responsible for the passing of the glacial period.
